

Psychoanalytic Approaches:

Personality Development
across the Life Cycle

Saturday seminars

October 202 – July 202

Welcome

We are delighted to offer in 2021-21 a well-established series of † ø that can be taken separately or connected together to fit in with particular areas of interest, continuing professional development and an exploration of psychoanalytic perspectives. These Saturday Seminars tracks the development of the personality from birth to old age, exploring the internal and external factors that combine to make us who we are.

The centrality of unconscious emotional experience within developmental frameworks is at the heart of the learning. The focus on the unique insights offered by opening up to unconscious communications and mind-body experience is the distinctive offer of these courses. How unconscious and developmental perspectives relate to culture and socio-political contexts frame the seminars and discussions

Course 1 Personality Development Across the Life Cycle – Psychoanalytic Approaches

Course Outline

Informed by psychoanalytic thinking, this course provides a detailed and in depth introduction to the key developmental factors and unconscious processes involved in the emotional life of the child and family from before birth through to old age. Participants are invited to think about the interplay of internal and external factors which underlie the development of personality.

Each seminar is led by an experienced psychoanalytic clinician and includes a variety of teaching methods: lecture, presentation, group discussion and small group work, using mediums such as poetry, children's literature and film to convey psychoanalytic concepts in an accessible way.

As the course highlights the impact on later development of earlier emotional experiences, the course will be most meaningful if the whole series is attended. Participants are also welcome to attend selected seminars.

Learning Outcomes

The identified learning outcomes include:

- Increased understanding of key developmental factors and unconscious processes
- Increased awareness of the interplay of internal and external factors that underlie personality development to inform work with children and families across the life-cycle and developmental stages
- Exploring the impact of earlier emotional experiences on later development throughout life
- Greater capacity to reflect on and understand oneself and others

“Inspiring on a professional but also personal level”

Course Lead Brian Nilsson is a Child and Adolescent Psychoanalytic Psychotherapist at Leeds CAMHS, where he works clinically with a range of children, adolescents and families. Brian is also a Course Tutor on the PGDip/Masters in Psychoanalytic Observational Studies at NSCAP and he has a particular interest in the unconscious processes at work in groups and teams.

Who should attend This course is highly relevant for all professionals working with infants, children, adolescents and adults across a range of settings; ie education, social care, residential care, physical and mental health, third sector. It is also recommended for those who are interested in learning about how we become who we are.
